
From:
Sent: Tuesday, June 07, 2016 1:23 PM
To: info@planbayarea.org
Subject: 2040

Citizen Comment for Plan Bay Area 2040:

The Big Cities Growth scenario, #4 in your list of growth/development choices, is the smartest in terms of cutting down on greenhouse gases. That's because population growth will be located where most of the jobs area, lessening commutes.

But the unanswered questions are:

(1) Should we be planning to add a massive number of 2.4 million new residents to the Bay Area by 2040?

(2) Doesn't that overcrowding lessen quality of life for all?

"If you build it, they will come."

So, why do it?

Peter Hensel

Corte Madera, CA