
From: barbara landy <>
Sent: Saturday, June 25, 2016 6:11 PM
To: info@planbayarea.org
Subject: Questionable growth need

The Plan assumes an unrealistic rate of growth as if climate change were not happening, but it is, and much faster than we had been expecting. The consequences include mass die offs of plants, animals, and humans too. Just yesterday, news feeds carried the story of the tree die offs in the Sierras and the change in ecology there due to the permanent drought in California. There will be increased demographic pressure on our borders as agriculture and sea life fail, but there are not enough resources in this area even to support our current population, so the area will not be able to support your imagined growth projections.

I vote No Project.